

Elk Point remembers those fallen in battle

Four members of the armed forces from Canadian Forces Base Wainwright stood guard at the corners of Elk Point's monument to those who died for their country in two world wars and other conflicts as poppy-studded wreaths were laid by representatives of government, organizations and businesses last Tuesday at the community's annual Remembrance Day observances.

The wreath laying ceremony started with O Canada, a prayer of invocation by Legion Chaplain Pastor Jim MacLellan and the placing of the colors under the direction of Sergeant-at-Arms Wayne Palmer. A benediction and blessing by Rev. Paulette Phillips concluded the outdoor portion of the morning.

The balance of the service moved into the Seniors' Recreation Centre, where trumpeter Paul Robbins sounded the Last Post and followed the minute of silence, Act of Remembrance by MC Sid Holthe and a bagpipe lament by Keith Stewart with Reveille.

Poems were offered by three area students. April Paley of Frog Lake Napawaew School recited John MacCrae's "In Flanders Fields," Devon Powder of Napawaew School recited "An Honorable Son" and Amy Olstad of Elk Point Elementary School recited "O God, Our Help in Ages Past."

Royal Canadian Legion Branch 151 President Louis Verhagen said the Legion is comprised of veterans and descendants of veterans. "What veterans should be associated with is not war, but the peace and democracy they fought for. Let us remember them because of peace." He asked all to remember that peace and freedom of choice are very important, and that its importance must be passed on to future generations. The Legion does this through its poppy contests and the youth involvement in the Remembrance Day services.

Captain Merle J. Mylrea of CFB Wainwright read a poem which is in effect a sequel to "In Flanders Fields," and which assured those who died that "The faith is not broken. Rest in peace forever more."

Council approves land use amendment

Elk Point Town Council approved an amendment to Land Use Bylaw 574-97 at their November 10 meeting which will allow discretionary use of the property currently owned by St. Michael's Catholic Church as an antique store, provided the integrity and appearance of the structure remains intact as a museum-type church. No written submissions were received, and no one appeared in person to attend a hearing on the amendment, scheduled for prior to the Council meeting. A small addition for a washroom will be permitted. The discretionary use applies only to the current purchaser of the property, and would have to be reapplied for if the property is sold again at some time in the future.

Other business development is also planned in Elk Point, with Council recently accepting an offer on a parcel of land north of Bumper to Bumper which will tentatively be used as the site for a motel and restaurant. Another offer has been received on a parcel north of the Hilltop Motor Inn, and is still in negotiations.

New development means the installation of new infrastructure. An extension of 49th Street from 57th to 59th Avenues, including the installation of utility lines, is planned to access the property north of the Hilltop, and an extension of water and sewer lines on 54th Avenue to service a recently sold industrial parcel is now being tendered. A half block of pavement overlay to be installed on 50th Street is also planned.

A bylaw to reduce the size of Council from seven members to five was defeated in its first reading.

Construction proceeding on Koch battery

Construction of the Koch Exploration Canada, Ltd. battery in the Ferguson Flats area is going full steam ahead, and will soon be ready to collect and treat oil from the 150 wells drilled so far in Koch's six-section project just northwest of the plant.

To date, 110 of the wells have been completed and are producing approximately 3000 barrels per day on multi-well pads, consisting of from one to eight wells each. Progressive cavity pumps lift oil mixed with varying amounts of water and sand from a 400 to 500 metre vertical depth, in wells that may slant as much as 45 degrees. They are electrically powered, which means they are very quiet, compared to the 360 Chevy engines used to power hydraulic pumps in areas where electrification is not feasible. The pumps are controlled by a computer which will automatically shut them down if they are plugged by sand.

Each pad has one or more "group tanks" which hold oil pumped from the wells and where a large portion of the sand suspended in the oil precipitates to the bottom. The cleaner oil then flows to what is known as a sales tank. A third type of tank on the pad site is a "test tank," where the product from one well is pumped for 24 hours and measured to determine that well's production. The tanks containing produced oil are equipped with natural gas fired warmers to keep the oil at a consistency which will flow.

On a tour last week of the wellsites and plant construction, Calgary-based project manager Dean Britton pointed out that some of the pads only have one well. "We build all the pads this size, and then sometimes find there isn't sufficient oil reservoir to drill more wells. However, it isn't cost effective to expand the pads later." Building full size pads is "beneficial both to us and the environment," he noted, adding that Koch generally doesn't build leases in the winter. "We try to pre-plan, and do it in the best construction time."

Five of the pad sites don't yet have wellheads in place. "We will bring those into production at a regular pace. Right now there is constraint with the service industry — it's very busy for service rigs."

Koch is "very cognizant of the truck traffic" their many wells require to drill and operate. They are trying to address that impact through policing and community meetings, and assure the area residents "it isn't going to be like that forever." The Ferguson Flats road is very busy, as are many roads in the area. The oil companies have been designated by the County of St. Paul to help with road maintenance in the areas where they operate.

Currently, oil produced by Ron Lundahl, Legion Zone Commander, brought greetings from Prime Minister Jean Chretien, who said of those who served Canada in the wars that "theirs is a record of service and sacrifice for which we are forever grateful." The tradition set in two world wars and Korea "continues today with four decades of peacekeeping. Their legacy is our heritage, and our children's inheritance."

Derek Quinney, representing Frog Lake First Nation, offered a drum song in honor of those who died for Canada, while Carmen Fayant of Fishing Lake Metis Settlement honored the aboriginal men and women who served in the wars, and offered a hope that "we may all walk in peace."

Councillor Dave Yake spoke on behalf of the Town of Elk Point, said that Remembrance Day "means many different things to people. To some it is a day to work, to some a day to go hunting. To me, it is time to think about how great a commitment was made by our fallen comrades. At the eleventh hour on the eleventh day of the eleventh month, let us remember them."

County of St. Paul reeve Ray Danyluk thanked "those who gave us an opportunity to remember... those who died and those who fought. The Legion keeps the flame of education burning. The value of freedom must be remembered." He recalled that as a Grade 9 student, his teacher, Sid Holthe, had impressed upon him that "if not for our fathers and forefathers, the configuration of the map wouldn't be the same. It's a lesson never forgotten." Now, Danyluk said, "we must look to the future. The freedom we enjoy today must be cherished."

MLA Paul Langevin said that "we gather as a people to celebrate freedom, rights, peace and democracy. It is time to remember those who were called to make sacrifices." He exhorted the Legion and the war veterans to "continue to tell us the real story so we can continue to celebrate and remember." Langevin acknowledged that Remembrance Day is "a time of sadness and mourning for families whose loved ones never came home. We share in their mourning."

Margaret Modin brought a message from MP Leon Benoit who told those present their participation "is very important. Too often, we only remember [the war dead] with fleeting thoughts. We cannot let this happen. We must share their pain and suffering. To the veterans still living, heartfelt thanks for the values that shape our country, and that were paid for in blood and toil."

President Verhagen congratulated Romy Rohner, whose 1996 Poppy Contest entry placed first in the Alberta-Northwest Territories division and went on to Dominion competition, and noted that this is the second time Elk Point has had a country-wide contender, the first being James Purdy. Verhagen presented a $300 cheque to the Crisis Centre, and $1000 for two wheelchairs to quadriplegics in the area.

The morning concluded with a worship service involving Rev. Paulette Phillips of Elk Point United Church, Rev. Sam Donaldson of Elk Point Christian Community Church, Pastor Jim MacLellan of Elk Point Baptist Church and the Elk Point Baptist Worship Team, with Noni Wilkinson as pianist.

Pastor MacLellan gave the Remembrance Day address, speaking on "The Facade of Freedom." Freedom, he said, is a facade. It is not free for physiological reasons: "Every person's will is a servant to their belief system and their reason. We would get very upset if anyone did exercise their will apart from their mentality... we actually restrain people who act in such a way. Every choice is made consistent with our nature." It is not free for philosophical reasons:

"The decisions you make today affect multitudes," whether right or wrong, for example drinking and driving or shoplifting, MacLellan said. Neither is it free for practical reasons: "Just try to act totally free someday and see what happens. Decide to drive as you want... walk where you want... eat what you want when you want. At the end of the day, you too will say freedom is a facade."

MacLellan said freedom is only real when we act in accordance with the laws of right living, whether adhering to a good budget, good regimens of eating and exercising, or living according to the moral demands of God.

The men and women of the armed and civil forces did not die for a facade of freedom, MacLellan said. "They died so that we could be free to do what is right and not be forced to do what is wrong. That's freedom!"

National Child Day is November 20

By Deanna Easthope
FCSS Director

On March 19, 1993, the Government of Canada designated November 20 as National Child Day. November 20 was chosen because it is the anniversary of two historic events for children: the adoption of the United Nations Declaration of the Rights of the Child in 1959... and the UN adoption of the Convention on the Rights of the Child in 1989.

National Child Day celebrates children... for just being themselves. It provides us with the opportunity to remember that children need love and respect to grow to their full potential. It's a day to listen to children and to marvel at their uniqueness and all they have to offer.

National Child Day is a day we celebrate with our children, not for our children. It is only a reminder that every day is a special day for children.

Spend time with your children. Do things together. For example, go for walks and talk about things your child sees as interesting. You could even do some chores together — these are good opportunities for talking and sharing.

Show interest in your child. For example, phone them when you can't see them in person; listen to your children — give them your full attention; and praise them when they attempt to try an activity and do the best they can.

Show affection to your children. Show them how you feel. Hugs and laughter go a long way. Be sad with your children. If they are upset about something, help them to be okay about sadness. Recognize and value their feelings. Tell them you care about them and love them. Saying "I love you" means a lot to children.

Set limits with your children. All parents need to be consistent about behavior and rules. Be firm and clear about limits, without being angry or loud. Criticize behavior only, not your child.

Get help if you feel you are not handling a situation with your children well, or not being the kind of parent you want to be, contact the Community Counselling Services in St. Paul at 645-6457 or call Mental Health in St. Paul at 645-6307 (They come to Elk Point every second Tuesday).

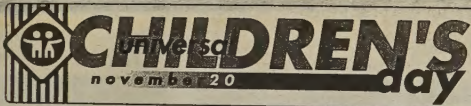

Coincidentally, November 20 is not only National Child Day, it is also the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip. They were married November 20, 1947.

So, this November 20, let us take time to "do" and "be" with our families, especially our children. Happy National Child Day!

The cost of substance abuse in Canada

$ There were 40,930 deaths attributable to substance abuse in Canada in 1992. Tobacco accounted for 33,498 of these deaths, alcohol 6,701 and illicit drugs 732. This represents 21% of total mortality in 1992.

$ Smoking-related deaths alone accounted for 17% of total mortality in 1992.

$ The number of hospitalizations due to substance abuse constitutes 8% of total hospitalizations and 10% of the total days spent in hospitals for any cause.

$ It is estimated that substance abuse cost $18.45 billion in Canada in 1992. This represents $649 per capita, or about 2.7% of the Gross Domestic Product.

$ Alcohol accounted for more than $7.5 billion in costs, representing $265 per capita. The per-capita costs of alcohol misuse are highest in Alberta ($285 per capita). The lowest per-capita costs are in Newfoundland ($199). Among the other provinces, per-capita costs range from $242 in Quebec to $283 in PEI.

$ Tobacco accounted for more than $9.6 billion in costs, or $340 per capita.

$ Illicit drugs accounted for $1.37 billion in costs, or $48 per capita.

(Taken from "Highlights of the Costs of Substance Abuse in Canada," a major study of the health, social and economic costs associated with the use of alcohol, tobacco and illicit drugs. Canadian Centre on Substance Abuse, 1996.)

Nutrition Notes

Take out food is taking off

By Shelley Miller-Hertes, RD
Elk Point Health Centre

Statistics show that Canadians eat out an average of 4.7 times per week. Over the past 10 years, there has been a five percent decline in restaurant spending, but an increase in take out eating. Thirty five percent of all meals purchased at restaurants, drive-throughs, supermarkets and other food outlets are eaten at home.

Why are we taking out more often? Time is the main reason. Our lives are busy and cooking and cleanup are not as easy to fit in anymore. So here are some tips to make your take-out meals more nutritious.

If pizza is on the menu, look for one with lots of vegetables, and perhaps one meat. For example, a mushroom, green pepper, onion, pineapple and fresh tomato pizza will have considerably less fat and calories than an all-meat or loaded pizza.

If chicken is the order of the day, look for stir-fried chicken with vegetables or barbecued chicken. Stay away from the fried, battered chicken. If you must have fried, battered chicken, removing the skin and batter before eating will save you a few teaspoons of fat.

If it's a burger you are after, look for one that is a single patty; lettuce, tomato and pickles are fine. Stay away from the double and triple patty burgers. The fish and chicken burgers are often higher in fat than the hamburger due to the deep frying process.

Look at balance in take out. If the take out meal is a protein and starch, maybe add a vegetable at home (for example, raw veggies or microwaved veggies). Add a glass of milk to the meal and fresh fruit for dessert. Both are quick and easy and good for you too!

Remember, "all foods can fit." It's just a matter of balance!

Adoption: a great way to build a family

By Darlene Kozicky
Families for Alberta's Children Today

This is Adoption Week in Alberta. Families for Alberta's Children Today (FACT) is promoting public awareness of adoption, as is the Adoption Council of Canada.

A major family restaurant chain across Canada is using posters and tray liners to promote public awareness for the need for permanent homes for Canada's children. The literature contains a toll free number, 1-888-54-ADOPT, where families can find information on Canadian children who are waiting for homes, as well as a list of adoptive parent support groups in their home province. In addition, there will be articles on adopting waiting children, a reading list and an information sheet for the family to complete.

FACT would like you to know that adoption works and is a great way to build a family. Prospective parents come from all walks of life — as long as you have a genuine interest in family and children, then you have the interest to adopt.

There are over 2000 children in Alberta waiting for permanent homes. These children are older, have special needs or are a part of a sibling group. FACT believes there are no unwanted children — just unfound parents. There is training available, resources that can be accessed and support groups to attend.

For further information on adoption in Alberta, contact FACT at 724-2216, the St. Paul district office at 645-6370 or for Canadian adoption contact 1-888-54-ADOPT.

Become educated and aware of our Canadian children! Together we can make a difference!

Midget Storm show good potential

By Doug Bassett
Elk Point Minor Hockey

The Midget Girls Storm players have really improved in their second season, playing very competitively, and have the potential to be a contender. Last Sunday afternoon, November 9, the Storm hosted Lashburn in their first home game of the season. A scoreless entertaining game until 6:41 of the second period when Lashburn finally buried one. The Storm, who came up against a hot goalie, outshot the Lashburn girls 32 to 11, but were down by three goals until :53 seconds were left on the clock, when Jena Bassett scored to break their bubble. The final score, 3-1 in favor of Lashburn.

On Friday night the Storm travelled to Hardisty, losing a close one 4 to 3. Jena Bassett opened the scoring at 12:40 of the first period followed by Amanda Lepine to give the Storm a two goal lead. Hardisty tied the game in the second before Kandice Bjornstad scored to give the girls the lead once more. Hardisty, not wanting to lose this one in their own barn, came back in the third to tie it once more, then tot the winner on the power play with only 40 seconds left on the clock.

Then on Saturday night the Storm, in their second home game, won their first of the season when they defeated Hanna 2 to 1. Sheena Flamand, who also plays with the Pee wee boys Blades, scored both goals for the Storm.

The Novice Hurricanes had a big victory on Saturday morning, winning a close one 6 to 5 when they hosted Glendon. A hat trick by young sniper Mark Brodwin, two goals by Ryan "Little M" MacDonald and a single by Brett Nelson.

Top billing for the game of the week was in the Atom league Saturday afternoon

F. G. Miller students present fun fashion frolic

F. G. Miller High School students put the fun in fundraising last Friday night with a gala fall fashion show which presented the latest in apparel from six popular suppliers to an enthusiastic crowd. Proceeds from the show went to the Class of '98 and to the French Class who are raising money for a trip to Quebec.

Mistress of Ceremonies Carrie Baumgardner provided commentary and announced the winners of a bountiful array of prizes. The display of fashions was interspersed with entertainment by talented FGM students and ample opportunity to visit the sumptuous buffet of goodies.

Stedmans, managed by Lois Sharek, was first on the fashion agenda, with clothing for the whole family. Cosy sweaters were paired up with jeans and dressy slacks, and windsuits, warm coats and outerwear made sure everyone was ready for wintry weather. For special occasions, Stedmans offered luxurious velour separates, and the latest styles with faux-fur trim. A poinsettia trimmed top pointed out that the festive season is on its way.

Option L, a shop-at-home firm represented in the area by Carrie Becker, offered fleece tops with leggings, fabric interest from ribbed knits to denim, and dress-up styles featuring skirt and slacks with handsome tops, along with the essential 'little black dress.'

Following entertainment by Pam Jabush, who sang "So Much For Pretending" and "Home Ain't Where the Heart Is," the focus turned to Canadian-made Weekender Wear limited edition fashions, represented in Elk Point by Wanda Cochrane. Easy care, easy to wear coordinates in a wide range of colors, they featured styles from workaday to dressy to leisure wear, with skirts from short and slim to long and swirly, and jackets and tops from cropped to mid calf length.

Video Point, owned by Shirley and Glenn Harms, offers a great selection of sportswear, from team shirts to sweatshirts, golf shirts and warm winter jackets. The latest anorak styles and fleece popovers and vests were also on their fashion-wise agenda.

A delightful air guitar presentation of the '60s hit, "Leader of the Pack," was presented by a group of Class of

'96 students, who looked much more like Class of '61 in their poodle skirts and ponytails for their portrayal of the tuneful story of a girl's love for her bike-riding hero -- a truly cool dude in head to toe black leather. Pam Jabush offered another selection, "No One Needs to Know," before the focus turned to fashion once again.

Kelly's Closet, already famous for Sherry Ozust's great selection of jeans and casual wear, showed off their line of the latest styles for pre-teens as well, right down to a Harley Davidson-logo-adorned black jacket. Great sweaters for guys and girls, soft-as-a-kitten fleece and slinky velour tops to team with swingy short skirts showed off their trendsetting fashion potential.

The final fashion supplier was St. Paul's Reitmans store, who paraded everything from denim overalls paired with a big shirt to a fuzzy sweater with flowered miniskirt to a dress-up pantsuit, and finished up the show with a lineup of flattering party wear for the upcoming festive season. Pam Jabush offered one last song, "Raining on our Love," to wind up the evening.

Door prizes, ranging from full-body massage to gift certificates, went to a long list of winners: Corrine Hawkins, Vicki Brooker, Julia Pankiw, Marie Charchun, Alyssa Fry, Peggy Anderson, Lana MacDonald, Laurie Ference, Michelle Hardcastle, Cher Barbaziuk, Judy Bilak, Donna Yaremkevich, Betty Radies, Lena Stepa, Carrie Becker, Sharon Ballas, Theresa Joly, Crystal ?, Shiela Kulczycki, Josie Veer, Daphne Schnurer and Twila Rainboth, with the grand prize of a diamond ring going to a very surprised Lois Sharek.

THE LEADER OF THE PACK is mourned by his sweetheart and her friends in this entertaining air guitar presentation by the Class of '98 at the Fashion Show.

Koch's wells in the Ferguson Flats area is being trucked north to the Charlotte Lake battery near Fort Kent or south to a battery near Lloydminster. When the new battery is complete, "we won't be doing that," Britton said. Oil will be trucked to the battery for treatment and then will go by pipeline to market.

The battery is designed to handle 14,000 barrels of "dirty oil" per day, which is added to a capacity of 14,000 barrels of cleaner oil, for a total capacity of 28,000 barrels.

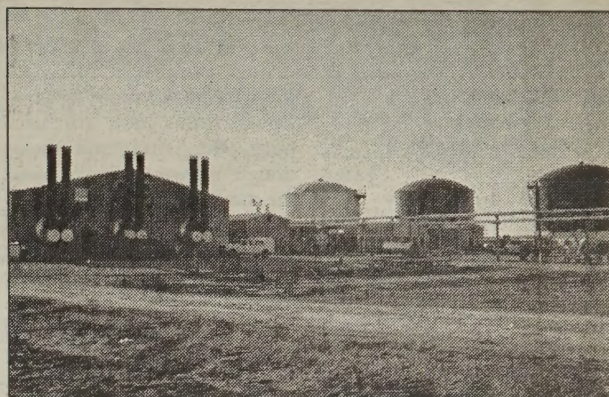

Trucks will enter the battery over a scale where a sample of oil is taken to determine the specific gravity of the load. After the oil is emptied into one of a row of "dump pits," the truck will weigh again on its way out of the plant, and the difference in weights will be calculated with the specific gravity to determine the volume delivered.

Project Manager Chris Bayle joined the tour to explain the process of treating the oil. It goes first to a "surge tank" and then to an inlet tank, on its way to the treaters, which take sand and water out of the oil. Huge pits lined with two layers of plastic and clay are ready to accept up to 100,000 cubic metres of sand, which may be used for road construction or disposed of in salt caverns. Water removed from the oil will go down a disposal well, while small amounts of gas found in the oil are burned off in a flare stack. The clean oil goes to a series of huge black "sales tanks." The battery will be tied into the Husky pipeline located approximately 150 meters to the west, which reaches from LaCorey to the Bi-Provincial Upgrader in Lloydminster, and will take oil from the plant to Lloydminster or to Hardisty.

There are currently "several hundred" people representing a wide range of trades, on site during the construction stage. When construction is complete, the battery will be manned by six to eight full time workers, working shifts around the clock to treat the ever-increasing volume of oil from the Ferguson Flats project.

TREATER AND TANKS are nearing completion at the Koch battery north of Lindbergh in the Ferguson Flats area. The plant will process oil from wells across the six section project.

Town approves amendment

Council debated at some length the relative merits of two types of sewer cleaning units, before making a decision to purchase the most suitable machine.

The annual FCSS Conditional Funding agreement was given the go-ahead by Council.

A non-profit tax exemption report which recommends that facilities used by the public be exempt from taxes was sent to the Executive Committee for further perusal.

Council concluded the meeting with an in-camera discussion regarding annexation.

The Crusader Column

E.G. Miller Student Journalists

Report cards were sent home on November 14. With that comes parent-teacher interviews. The evening of November 19 has been designated for that purpose. Parents are encouraged to come to the school between the hours of 5:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. to talk to their children's teachers as well as to look take a look at the renovations. The south end is nearly completed and the transfer of books, equipment and the office has already started. In fact, Ms Smereka looks quite pleased with her new surroundings! She is confident that by December 1, students should be able to sign out library books and take full advantage of the new library. She would also like to thank the Legion for their donation of the book "No Man's Land" which was kindly given to the library after the Remembrance Day ceremony on November 7.

The month of November has been busy with various groups trying to raise money. For instance, the French Club is still selling pizza every Friday in Mrs. Pentek's room. The basketball teams have also been busy selling fruit and cookie dough. We would like to thank the community for their continued support of our school and its activities.

The volleyball season is starting to come to an end. Senior High County Cup will be held on November 19. Our Senior High Boys will be off to Saddle Lake and the Senior Girls are hoping to be in Myrnam that day. That weekend, both teams will be competing in Zone playoffs. The girls will be travelling to Kitscoty while the boys will most likely be in Vegreville (possibly Lamont). The Junior teams will also be competing in their County Cup on November 20. The girls' team will travel to Myrnam and the boys will be off to Mallaig. Good luck to all Crusader teams!!

Please remember that on November 27, students are dismissed early and there is no school on November 28 because of Teacher Professional Development Day. The evening of November 28 is also Awards Night that will take place here at the school at 7:00 p.m.

Above the Limit continues to receive great support. Thank you to some of our latest contributors: Elk Point Truss, Tarsands, Mrs. Pentek, OORP, R.E. Beattie, Marshall and Agnes Moroziuk and Ray Danyluk. Students of the Week for November 17 to 21 are Corbett Gildersleeve and Alyssa Fry.

What's news at the library?

Time to write those letters to Santa Claus!

By Michele Duczek
Librarian

We are planning something special at Storytime this week. All the kids who come will get the opportunity to write a letter to Santa Claus and the librarian will make sure that the letters get to the North Pole in time for Santa to write back. So if you have something special you want to tell the jolly old guy, come down to the library this Friday.

As of this writing, there is still no snow, but that doesn't mean that curling up with a good book isn't a good idea. Here are the latest titles in adult nonfiction:

In You Had to Be There, Robert Collins looks at that generation of Canadians that came right before the baby boomers, from their beginnings, through the Second World War to the present.

Photographer William DeKay went on an 18-month, 80,000 km journey throughout rural Canada and the result is Down Home: A Journey Into Rural Canada, a beautifully illustrated look at life in Canada outside the big city.

And in adult fiction:

Twenty years ago, the top CIA and KGB agents joined forces to destroy a cabal of power-brokers and their hired assassins. Now it seems that the circle has formed again in The Matarese Countdown by Robert Ludlum.

A respected London solicitor is beaten to death and it appears that his severely beaten son may be the culprit in Silent Cry, the latest William Monk mystery by Anne Perry.

David and Leigh Eddings put the final touches on their Belgariad and Malloreon sagas by telling the story of Polgara, daughter of Belgarath in Polgara the Sorceress.

The latest in children's fiction:

A murder mystery weekend turns up a plot to stage a real killing in Wicked for the Weekend from the Nancy Drew Files.

Thanksgiving in Utah turns up a missing college student and sabotage at the site of the 2002 Winter Olympics in At All Costs, a Nancy Drew and Hardy Boys Super Mystery.

When the cheerleaders choose the school librarian as their faculty advisor, they didn't realize the trouble it would cause in "R" for Revenge from Sweet Valley High.

Alex is staying with his aunt and uncle in Wolf Creek and he is about to find out the secret of Wolf Creek in Werewolf Skin from Goosebumps.

For Richard Scarry fans we have Watch Your Step, Mr. Rabbit. Mr. Rabbit's feet get stuck in a freshly paved street.

An Early Step Into Reading book.
